

BOLDEN CEMETERY::: on banks of BLACK CREEK:::

Original land granted to Parshall Terry::: 1796

John Winger bought 200 acres near this plot :1799

Bolden family owned land in: 1876.

BRILLINGER owned the farm site of plot

Albion Winger owner of property. 1900's

In the 1860's the property on which this Cemetery stands , was owned by R<sup>c</sup> Kirkpatrick. In 1876 it went to the Bolden family and later , to the Brillingers and then the Wingers. In the 1900's Albion Winger had his home here, on the banks of Black Creek.

BOLDEN CEMETERY::: on the banks of Black Creek:

Last od Stevensville, off College Rd.

1976; renamed- Black Creek Pioneer Cemetery.

This rather small but old plot , has served the early members of the Tunker Church , from the early 1800's. It has not been used for many years, but considering it's age, it has had little damage. To_day in 1976 there are slightly over eighty stones standing; and among the family names to be found are:

WINGER: CLIMENHAGE: BEAM: HOUSE: ZIMMERMAN: EVERETT: SAUER:

FLAGG: RAWLINGS: SHERK: NEFF: NIGH: STORM: PECKART:

After a reunion of the Climenhage family in the 1970's, Louis Climenhage, with help from a number of decendents of the original settlers in this cemetery ; undertook the job of restoring it . Much work was needed to remove the underbrush, to replace the fence , to put upright many of the stones that had broken and to clean and restore others that were almost unreadable. In undertaking this job, the number of graves accounted for came to one hundred and twenty-five; but it no doubt contains several more. Several of the markers were found burried well under the ground ; and they contained only two enitials and the date of burrial. They are thought to be members of the Winger family.

After completion of the restoration, it was decided to rename the cemetery once more; and from now on it is to be known as the "BLACK CREEK PIONEER CEMETERY" . Down through the years it had been given the name as Winger, Brilliger and until lately Bolden Cemetery; however the choice of the new name was a wise one; considering the location and the varied number of early settlers burried in this historic plot.
