

STONEMILL QUARRIES:: 1868.

COMSTOCK: agentleman from Florida purchased the property in the 1940's had four cabins to the front by the Dominion Rd. also a store and his home to rear of the property.

cabins were eventually demolished and the home left standing for a time, till it to was taken down.

FRANK PASSERO bought the property and opened Sunny Acres riding Stables here in the 1950's.

FRONTIER LANDING: In March 1981 two englishmen along with a Fort erie native Jack Barton formed a company to develop the old quarry. The water was cleaned up for swimming and paddle boats were for rent. An Indian village was created at the back of the proerty which included a large authentic Long House. The Park closed in Apr. of 85 after financial difficulties.

JEFFREY COATES::: purchsed the property in 1986. In Feb. 1990 he formed the Coates Development Company. He planned to build seven homes fronting the Dominion, however this plan did never get off the ground.
